DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office action is responsive to the amendment filed 02/15/2005. Claims 1-26 are presented for examination. Any objections or rejections made in the previous office action not specifically repeated below are withdrawn or have been overcome by applicant's response. In the specification the machine readable medium defined as "electrical, optical, acoustical or other form of propagated signals (e.g., carrier waves, infrared signals, digital signals, etc.), and others" is not proper and must be deleted.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. section 103 (a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 C.F.R. 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arimilli (6,587,926) in view of the standard practice of integrating circuits, as further evidenced by Sherburne (2002/0184546).

Arimilli discloses a power supply, a plurality of processor units, a plurality of cache units, one of the cache units provided for each one of the processor units, an embedded RAM unit for storing instructions and data for the processor units (e.g., Figure 1), a cache coherent bus coupled to the processor units and the embedded RAM unit, the bus configured to provide cache coherent snooping commands from the processor units themselves (col. 9, lines 39-45) to ensure cache coherency between the cache units for the processor units and the embedded RAM unit (e.g., col. 2, lines 1-5). Arimilli does not expressly mention a particular embodiment of an integrated circuit die, however the Examiner takes Official Notice that it is manifestly obvious to integrate multi-processing devices for the well-known and well-noted advantages of portability, power consumption, and so forth. This is further evidenced by Sherburne. Sherburne discloses the well-known practice of using highly integrated devices to obtain the advantages of decreased size and weight (e.g., paragraph (0002)).

It would be obvious to combine Arimilli with the well-known practice of integration because the practice is standard and the advantages for doing so are well established in areas such as those evidenced by Sherburne, which included multiprocessing systems with cache and embedded memory. Therefore it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine Arimilli with the standard practice of integration.

The examiner believes all dependent claim features not specifically discussed above are expressly or inherently taught by Arimilli or Sherburne. The remaining dependent claim features, while part of the invention, do not appear essential to the main invention found in the independent claims. The dependent claim features appear readily available to the computer/memory designer reviewing the primary references. Thus, a detailed discussion of the well known claim feature(s) is not warranted at this time. Support for this line of reasoning is derived from 37 C.F.R. 1.105. 37 C.F.R. 1.105 permitting “stipulations as to facts” or “whether a dependent claim element is known in the prior art based on the examiner having a reasonable basis for believing so.”

Art Unit: 2188

4. Applicant's arguments filed 02/15/2005 with respect to claim 1-26 have been considered but are deemed to be moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.
